

GUIDELINES

Please read the following instructions carefully. In this study, you will focus on three major aspects for each paragraph you annotate: Emotional tone, Moral expression, and Events occurrence. Below, you will find detailed descriptions of each aspect and how to evaluate them.

DEFINITIONS

Moral expression, which pertains to the underlying morality aspect according to the Moral Foundation Theory considering their dyadic relationship:

- care/harm: it is related to our long evolution as mammals with attachment systems and an ability to feel (and dislike) the pain of others. Care underlies the virtues of kindness, gentleness, and nurturance. Its opposite, harm, consists of these virtues in their opposite form: kindness → cruelty, gentleness → brutality, nurturance → indifference.
- fairness/cheating: it is related to the evolutionary process of reciprocal altruism. Fairness underlies the virtues of justice and rights. Its opposite, cheating, underlies injustice, exploitation, and dishonesty.
- loyalty/betrayal: it is related to our long history as tribal creatures able to form shifting coalitions. It is active anytime people feel that it's "one for all and all for one." Loyalty underlies the virtues of patriotism and self-sacrifice for the group. Its opposite, betrayal, underlies treachery, disloyalty, and selfishness.
- authority/subversion: it is shaped by our long primate history of hierarchical social interactions. Authority underlies virtues of leadership and followership, including deference to prestigious authority figures and respect for traditions. Its opposite, subversion, underlies defiance, disrespect, and rebellion.
- purity/degradation: it is shaped by the psychology of disgust and contamination. It underlies notions of striving to live in an elevated, less carnal, more noble, and more "natural" way (often present in religious narratives). It underlies the widespread idea that the body is a temple that can be desecrated by immoral activities and contaminants (an idea not unique to religious traditions). Purity underlies the virtues of self-discipline, self-improvement, naturalness, and spirituality. Its opposite, degradation, underlies corruption, unnaturalness, and depravity.

Emotional tone, identifying the presence and intensity of specific emotions in the text:

- joy: A high-energy emotion characterized by feelings of happiness, contentment, and pleasure.
- love: A strong affectionate emotion encompassing a deep sense of attachment.
- optimism: A hopeful or confident emotional state regarding future outcomes.

- trust: An emotion involving confidence in or reliance on someone or something, often accompanied by feelings of safety, security, and support.
- anger: An intense emotional response to perceived wrongdoing or threat. Often associated with a desire to confront or remove the source of frustration.
- sadness: A low-energy emotion characterized by feelings of loss, unhappiness, or disappointment.
- disgust: A strong aversion or repulsion, triggered by something perceived as offensive, distasteful, or unacceptable.
- pessimism: A generally negative or wary emotional outlook about the future.
- fear: An emotional reaction to a perceived threat or danger, often prompting avoidance or protective behavior.
- anticipation: A forward-looking emotion involving expectation or prediction of future events, which can be experienced positively or negatively.
- surprise: A brief emotional reaction to an unexpected event or stimulus, typically prompting heightened attention or curiosity.

Events occurrence, which focuses on the events detected within the paragraph and the subjects involved. Events are defined as specific occurrences involving one or more participants, providing precise contextual information. In our setting, an event always includes a mention, i.e., a phrase/sentence describing the event. It may also include entities, i.e., the participants involved in the event, and their respective roles (if available).

EVALUATION PROCESS

For Emotions and Morality:

- Provide a score from 1 to 5 indicating how strongly each emotion or moral label is present: 1 = very low, 2 = low, 3 = moderate, 4 = noticeable, 5 = strongly present.
- Also, set score to 0 = absent if you want to specify that moral or emotion dimensions are absent in the text. Note that, if you do not provide a score for a label, that label will be considered absent.
- If you select a value greater than zero and wish to cancel your selection, please select the 0 option. Unanswered rows will be interpreted as 0.
- Important: You must provide a score greater than 0 for AT LEAST ONE emotion label and AT LEAST ONE moral label, unless you believe there are no emotional or moral labels. In that case, leave all labels unselected or with 0 score.

For Events:

- A list of possible events will be shown. Answer YES or NO to indicate whether you believe each event is informative for the paragraph.

IMPORTANT NOTES

Each page presents a single news paragraph for annotation. Once you proceed to the next page, you will not be able to return to the previous one.

Please refrain from making subjective decisions regarding moral or emotional scoring based on your external knowledge of the facts reported in the news. Your scoring decisions should be based solely on the text provided.

Thank you again for your contribution.

EXAMPLE

News paragraph:

Two years after the start of the scandal, producer Harvey Weinstein will appear in court on Monday for sexual assault. American film producer Harvey Weinstein is expected in New York on Monday at the opening of his highly publicized trial for sexual assault, two years after a scandal which spawned the #MeToo movement and brought down many men of power. Since the New York Times revelations on October 5, 2017, more than 80 women have accused this 67-year-old former Hollywood mogul of having sexually harassed or assaulted them. But the trial only directly concerns two of them, witnessing the difficulty of building a criminal case without material evidence and without a witness, around allegations which often go back several years. Former production assistant Mimi Hileyi claims that Harvey Weinstein sexually assaulted her in her New York apartment in July 2006. The second alleged victim, who remains anonymous, accuses her of a rape in March 2013 in a bedroom hotel, also in New York.

Please provide a score greater than 0 for AT LEAST ONE moral label for the paragraph above, unless you believe there are no moral labels. In that case, leave all labels unselected or with 0 score. If you select a value greater than zero and wish to revert your choice, please select the 0 option. Unanswered rows will be interpreted as 0.
